NEWS-HERALD Special. RAINSBORO, O., August 21st, 1886. The annual Spargur Rennion, the great social event of the season, came off to-day, with its usual attractions. The morning was cloudy and looked somewhat inauspicious, but that did not seem to have much to do in keeping the people away. Their plans were laid for the occasion and must be carried out and want all my old customers to call and quite early in the day they began pourng in from all directions and soon the beautiful grove of John Redkey was alive with the happy throng, all seeming eager to make the most out of the oppertunity. The Greenfield Brass Band that has discoursed such sweet, soulstirring music for several years at each annual gathering, was on hand promptly and did itself credit as was expected, and gave a plausable animation to all the movements. The select choir, largely composed of the Spargur connection, also enlivened the occasion by their spirited singing and demonstrated the fact that the race was not wanting in musical talent. Uncle Joe Spargur, the leading spirit in the reunions, though having lost much of the buoyancy of ous other goods of both use and orna- youth, was on hands, full of enthusiasm here in a social capacity and we want every one to enjoy themselves, and if any choose to spend the time in conversation our only request is, that they retire a sufficient distance so as not to annoy the speakers or prevent those from

Mr. Henry Hall lost a valuable mare a few Mr. Henry Hall lost a valuable mare a few days since. To provent her from jumping he had her halter strap passed between her fore legs and tied to a rope, which was tied around her body sureingle fashion. The mare got her hind foot hooked over the halter strap, which downed her, and when found was in a big ditch on her back, and had lain there so long she had lost the use of her limbs. Yet with assistance she was taken to a suitable yard and kindly cared for. It is supposed that she was injured internally.
